CIRCULAR SAWS!

Made Without Hammering.

The "SIMONDS" saws are straightened by means of heat and pressure, and without hammering, and are warranted superior to hammered saws for the following reasons:

The success of the process requiring a uniform heat, insures a perfectly uniform temper, and they file and set in a more satisfactory manner.

Being free from uneven strain or buckle, they stand up to their work better.

As the steel is left in a natural condition by this process, the saws retain their original shape, or position, as they are reduced in size, thus avoiding the necessity and expense of re-hammering.

Being made of a higher quality of steel than it is practical to use by the old method, they hold an edge longer.

Large circular mill saws can be run at any reasonable speed with equally good results—saws 50 inches in diameter having been tested from 400 to 1250 turns a minute with perfect satisfaction, while hammered saws must be hammered differently for different speeds.

The "SIMONDS" saws received at the Centennial a Medal, Diploma, and the following report of the Board of Judges:

"Circular Saws of beautiful finish and form, and originality in the method of manufacture."

A trial of the SIMONDS' SAWS will satisfy any millman that he cannot afford to use hammered saws.

THE STATE COLLEGE.

ANNUAL REPORTS OF THE TRUSTEES, PRESIDENT AND OTHER OFFICERS.

Hon. Abner Coburn, in behalf of the Trustees of the State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, has prepared his annual report to the Legislature, ... the condition of the College. The Trustees have been ... impressed with the usefulness of the College and its importance to the State.

A change has been made in the College terms, reducing the number from three to two. The first term will commence early in August and continue until the last week in November. The second term will commence early in February and close towards the last of June. By this change the students will be relieved from study during the warmest part of the summer, and left at liberty to assist their friends at home or to work for wages, as many of them desire to do, through the season of haying. A revision of the courses of study, suggested by the experience of the past, has also been authorized by the Trustees. It is an object sought is to equalize the amount of study and of educational work between the different courses. Opportunities are afforded the students so far as it has been possible for putting into practice the knowledge acquired in the class-room. The students in the agricultural course are required to perform educational work upon the farm, and in the garden and orchard. They are taught to conduct experiments and carefully to note results. Students in chemistry have three hours work in the laboratory several times each week. Those in civil engineering are provided with necessary instruments, and by several hours practice each week become familiar with the details of railroad construction. But for students in mechanical engineering, no corresponding opportunities have been afforded, and it is recommended that a system of work shop instruction be introduced on the Russian plan, as it can be done at a small expense. Additional buildings are needed to extend the usefulness of the college, and more apparatus for the school-room is called for.

The amount asked from the Legislature last year, for various purposes, was $23,500. In response the Legislature appropriated $8,000. Of this sum $3,500 was required to pay the debt. More than the remaining $4,500 would be required for the payment of salaries of the professors, in addition to the revenue of the Congressional Fund. Nothing would be left to pay the current running expenses of the college. There was no way to bring the expenditures of the year within the appropriation but to change the present excellent plan, and Board of Instruction and hire cheaper men to fill their places, or to suspend two of the departments. As either course would have imperiled the prosperity of the institution, both were rejected. The result is, a small debt. The report of the Treasurer shows that the Treasury has been overdrawn by the amount of $1,515 76. The appropriation against the College, added to the above amount, makes its indebtedness at this date $3,000.

Rev. C. F. Allen, D. D., President of the College, reports that the failure to secure the needed appropriation for the college, has interfered with the accomplishment of much that is desirable in the development of the institution. The practical experiments conducted have not been so extensive as they would otherwise have been.

The short period in which the institution has been in operation has been an incessant struggle for existence, and yet, under the unfavorable circumstances the work accomplished has not been discreditable to the State.

At the exercises of the graduating class last July, thirteen students received the degree of Bachelor of Science, ten the degree of Civil Engineer, and four the degree of Mechanical Engineer. A part of the work of the President the past year, has been instruction in Rhetoric, English Literature and History, Elocution and Composition.

The department of Mathematics and Physics has continued in charge of Prof. M. C. Fernald. Satisfactory progress has been made by the several classes. A new building for a laboratory and additions to the apparatus are earnestly called for. It is hoped that speedy provisions may be made for the construction of a building which may include chapel, library, engineering rooms, cabinet, room for the department of agriculture, physical laboratory, and rooms giving enlarged accommodations for recitations and for other purposes.

Prof. Albert B. Aubert has had charge of the department of Chemistry. Among the experiments that have been made in connection with the growth of sugar beets, demonstrating that their culture for the purpose of producing sugar may be made successful in Maine, as suggested by Gov. Connor in his address.

The department of Natural History has been in charge of Prof. G. H. Fernald, who has given instruction in physical geography, human anatomy, physiology and hygiene, ... botany and horticulture, by text-book, lectures and ... zoology, entomology and comparative anatomy, by lectures, excursions and objective work in the cabinet; in ... mineralogy, by lectures and laboratory practice, and in geology by lectures and excursions.

The interesting and important department of Mechanical Engineering has been in charge of Prof. Walter Flint, who makes a detailed report of progress in that department. Beside the regular text book work the students spend two hours and a half a day in the drawing room where they receive thorough instruction in machine, isometric and perspective drawing. The usual trips have been made to Bangor, where the students make sketches and measurements of certain machines, from which they afterwards make working drawings. The class which graduated last April, spent the last term of their course in designing engines and boilers, of which they made the necessary drawings and calculations.

The great necessity for affording some practical instruction of the students of this department, to correspond to the field practice of the students in civil engineering, is felt more than ever, and the establishment of a machine shop, for practical instruction, is recommended.

Prof. W. S. Chaplin has had charge of the department of Modern Languages, and Military instruction. The military instruction has been somewhat changed in character ... devoted to ... the same ... five days in the week, and one hour extra one day each week. This arrangement has proved beneficial. Early in the spring the State authorities furnished the Cadets with one hundred breech-loading muskets and proper equipments. These have been in daily use during the summer and autumn terms.

The several studies in the Agricultural course that are more immediately connected with practical farming, are assigned to the care of Mr. J. Farrington, the farm superintendent. Various tests and experiments are recorded in his report.

THE LAW OF HONOR.

THE STAY OF CHIVALRY.

What can be the nature, what can be the value of that kind of virtue, that form of goodness, which was systematically practiced by William Rufus? Perhaps William Rufus would not be so easily accepted as Francis I., as the type of the honorable or chivalrous character. William Rufus stands out in popular conception, as it does also in sober truth, as one of the most hateful characters in English or in any other history. He stands out as the oath-breaker, the treaty-breaker, the man given up to the foulest vices, the general oppressor of every class, the man who, without a sign of intellectual skepticism, delighted to proclaim himself as the enemy and the blasphemer of the God in whom he had not ceased to believe. Such is the common conception of the Red King; and as a conception, which, as far as it goes, is fully borne out by the facts of his history. But this side of him does not make up the whole man. Besides the fact that William Rufus was, whenever he chose to be, either, not only a great captain but a great ruler, there is also some reason for looking on him as the first recorded "gentleman." He is certainly the first recorded man by whom the doctrines of honor and chivalry are constantly and ostentatiously put forward as his ruling principles of action. When we look more narrowly into the actions of the Red King, we see that they were guided by a law (though that law was neither the law of God nor the law of his kingdom. The law of Rufus was the law of the knight and gentleman, the law of honor. Reckless both of justice and of mercy, he was quite capable of generosity. Reckless of his oaths to his people of his treaties with princes, when he pledged his word as "probus miles"—as an officer and a gentleman"—then he kept it faithfully. He not only kept it himself, but he cast aside with scorn the suggestion that a knight who had passed his word could never break it. When reproached with his repeated breaches of his promises to the nation which had saved his crown for him, he answered that no man could keep all his promises. But his one class of promise—promises made in the character of knight and gentleman—Rufus always did keep. The popular conception of his character leaves out this side—the chivalrous of it—just as the popular conception of Francis I. dwells mainly on the chivalrous side of his character, and puts out of sight its general blackness both as a man and as a king. Francis is rather a popular character with ordinary readers of history, while Rufus is certainly the opposite. But Rufus in his own day, seems to have had to some extent the same reputation as Francis. Men who condemned his private and public crimes still half admired the quality which in his own day was called his magnanimity. The difference between the lasting reputation of the two Kings is probably owing to the different relations in which each of them stood to the received religion of his time. Francis, in the eyes of many of his contemporaries, half atoned for his crimes, and vices by the merits of his religious persecutions. Rufus added to his crimes and vices a form of irreligion which was almost peculiar to himself. Again, in doing wrong to all classes, he did wrong to churchmen also, and churchmen had, in his age, the best means of making their wrongs known to the world. Francis was a patron of art and literature, while Rufus, bears no such character. Is a difference in the times rather than in the men? The builder of the first Hall of Westminster was a patron of art, as art was understood in his time. As to literature, while in the days of Francis it was patronage was the fashion among Kings and Princes, in the days of Rufus the learned Henry stood out as something ... without a parallel in Western Europe. Altogether, allowing for the difference of their times, the two men were perhaps not quite so unlike as they seem at first sight. And in the point with which I am now chiefly concerned, they stood or fell together. Each is a type of the men who has the doctrine of honor and chivalry on his lips. From their examples we may perhaps judge what honor and chivalry are really worth.

The law of honor, as understood by William Rufus, is the real original law of honor; what the other man calls by the grand name is not the law of honor, but something a great deal better, to which he would do well to give its real name. We sometimes ask what is meant by a "true gentleman," and we get for answer a description of a man who is morally perfect. If so, why give him a false name? Why not call him the honest man that he really is? Such a portrait may be a portrait of a virtuous man in any time or place; it is not the portrait of the historic "gentleman" at the time when "gentleman" first began to be heard of. The truth is that the law of honor, the standard of the gentleman is, in its origin, the law of an exclusive and overbearing military oligarchy. It is the law of William Rufus, and of men like William Rufus. It is the law which binds, not men as men, not citizens as citizens, but members of an exclusive order as members of that exclusive order. Its standard is the opinion of that order; its code, the law of honor, prescribes what is deemed to be worthy of honor by the opinion of that order. It prescribes certain forms of courage, certain forms of truthfulness, often such fantastic forms as to go far towards turning those virtues into vices. I have always specially delighted in the story of the knight who, for love of his lady and in discharge of his vow, rode up and down, his spear into the gate of the enemy's castle, and who, as he went back, having thus gloriously preserved his honor, was cut down by the plebeian hands of a butcher. Here is chivalry developed to the point of lunacy. The man is not even rash or foolhardy; for rashness or foolhardiness may consist either in miscalculation or in yielding to a mere impulse of daring. He simply goes for the sake of his honor to do a thing which is the act of a madman and of no one else. He is not a good soldier; for the duty of a good soldier is to do all that in him lies, according to his degree, to advance the enterprises on which he is engaged. But the taking of the castle was in no way helped by this feat ... his lance into the gate. All that he did was to risk, and to lose, for no purpose a life which might have been useful for the business in hand. This kind of thing is genuine chivalry; it is the fantastic notion of honor, the grotesque distortion of the two noble virtues of courage and truthfulness, carried to its natural development. This is chivalry; this is the carrying out of the standard of the chivalrous class, the class who go to battle on horses and despise those who fight on foot. We must not leave the name of chivalry transferred from pranks like these to which it really belongs to actions which deserve much better names. "I have heard" the name "chivalrous" applied to such deeds as that of Sir Philip Sidney when the ... ... it was something much better ... an act of self-denial ... Nor was there any ... such an act as that which, in ... is told, of David ... and several other captains, how they ... to drink water of ... which their men could not ... them ... might spring from a more ... pus impulse; it might spring from ... and far-seeing policy, or from some ... und motive in which these two elements are inextricably mixed together. ... chivalry, ... to which ... more really belongs. Chivalry is not ... of the soldiers, it is the virtue ... General. It is the fantasy of a ... or a class of soldiers, who are led to do things which are no part of their duties, either as men or as soldiers, ... knight who was killed by the butcher ... have had it written on his tomb that ... carried out the character of a man of honor to the last. Compare this with the true standard of military virtue. On the tomb of the 300 at Thermopylae it was not written that they had done anything as a matter of honor; it was written that they lay there in obedience to the laws of Sparta. The standard of chivalry, then, the standard of honor, the standard of the knight and gentleman, is not only at its best very imperfect, but it is apt to run into vagaries which have no ground either in law and morals or in common sense. But more than this, it is apt to become positively wicked. As a purely class feeling, professing at the best only those virtues which are thought becoming in an exclusive class, it naturally led to utter recklessness toward all who did not belong to that class. The contempt of the gentleman for the roturier, his recklessness of the rights of the roturier were the natural offspring of the chivalrous standard.—Fortnightly Review.

HOUSE GARDENING.—As regards plants, unless the basket be large, or a stand (which by the way, can be made of a soap box, lined with zinc and mounted on feet) we do not believe in any large variety of plants in a single receptacle. It is nonsense to mix exotics with wild ferns and grasses, because that nature of the soil which suits one is not beneficial to the other; and very often the warm, uniform temperature necessary for delicate plants, is fatal to the more hardy varieties from the woods and pastures. Fill a basket entirely with English ivy or smilax, and a luxuriant growth can be obtained, particularly if too many shoots be not set in. City florists aim to cram as much as possible into their baskets, and are totally regardless whether the broad leaves of the begonias shade the stems and roots of the more delicate creeping vines. In first setting in the plants, however, place them for a few days in a cold room until new shoots appear. Remember also that plants, and especially ivy, will not grow without light, particularly in the house. There is another fact that amateur house gardeners forget, and that is that the roots of a plant need plenty of air, and hence pretty pots of painted china or majolica ware will not answer to contain the earth for their reception. If such vessels be used, the common earthenware pot must be set inside of them, with plenty of intermediate space between; while care should be taken that the higher edges of the outer pot do not shade the base of the plant. Vegetation may be rejuvenated with a little ammonia, but it must be used with care, as too much kills. About two drops in a tea-cupful of water, given once a week, we have found to be plenty for a good-sized plant, particularly if the earth around the roots be kept loose and not allowed to pack hard.—Scientific American.

THE HIGHEST PLACES FOR THE WORST REBELS.

(From the N. Y. Times.)

If there was one man more than another whom Andrew Johnson held in detestation it was Isham G. Harris, rebel Governor of Tennessee. The honest but choleric Tennessean might be, in one of his sunniest moods, but the name of Harris was sufficient to goad him into fury. While he was President of the United States, a casual visitor at the White House happened to refer jocosely to some of Harris' undignified escapades. Instantly the President's face darkened, his eyes snapped, and he cried out "Harris!" almost with a bellow of rage; and then delivered himself of a few expressions of his scorn and contempt for the fugitive ex-Governor, each word being a concentration of bitterness and loathing. This was not the result of a personal quarrel. Much as Johnson was swayed by considerations of private pique or judgment, his grievance against Harris had its origin in higher motives. He knew Harris to be a conspirator, a traitor of the sneaking kind, and a plunderer of the State Treasury. While Johnson, Brownlow and Maynard were upholding in Tennessee the cause of the Republic, this man Harris was plotting to carry the State into the rebel Confederacy. The people rejected by a decided majority, a proposition to call a convention to consider the expediency of seceding from the Union. Harris and his fellow conspirators secretly sent a committee to the rebel capital, at Montgomery, and the "league" which these men made with the rebel leaders, was ratified by Harris' Legislature in secret session. While this plot was in process of execution, the President's call for troops was issued. Harris impudently replied: "Tennessee will not furnish a single man for coercion, but fifty thousand, if necessary, for the defence of our rights and those of our Southern brethren."

Within a year after uttering this bombast, Harris fled ignominiously into Georgia carrying with him whatever booty he could lay his hands on. The capture of Fort Donelson, in February, 1862, destroyed the last rebel hope in Nashville. The people of that region were mightily afraid of gunboats. The rivers were their lines of weak ness, and every plan of defense was made with a view to repel the "Yankee" gunboats." Harris had a regiment of picked men for the purpose of skewering the invaders whenever they should land. The much-vaunted pikes were left in Nashville when Harris and his Government "lit out," as the Union forces drew near the city. But Harris took care to carry off with him the cash in the State Treasury, the school funds, and other valuables. Honest John B. Floyd, Secretary of War under Buchanan, and then in command of the rebel troops at Nashville, was a worthy coadjutor of Harris, and when the discomfited rebels ran away, they "looted" the Bank of Tennessee, a State banking concern at Nashville. Then, cutting down the costly and beautiful suspension bridge across the Cumberland, Harris, Floyd, the rebel Legislature, and the rest of the pack, fled into the fastnesses of the Confederacy, bearing their spoils with them. The destruction of the bridge was an act of wanton idiocy, and was a severe loss to the people of the region. Many of those among them the family of the rebel General, Zollicoffer, had their sole property in bridge stock. The Union troops were not impeded in their march by this piece of vandalism. And so Harris took flight, pursued by the scoffs and lampoons of the people whose trust he had betrayed.

Harris was not merely a secessionist. He was a conspirator and a plunderer. If he were an honest believer in the doctrines then in vogue, and had adopted honorable means in support of them, he would not now behold up to execration. Andrew Johnson's abhorrence was for Harris as a man who had betrayed the people of Tennessee, and who, after disregarding the popular will concerning a proposed ordinance of secession, broke into the depositories of public funds and carried off their contents. The action of the Harris Government, on leaving Nashville, was not warfare, it was burglary. Harris had taken an oath to maintain and defend the laws and interests of the State. When personal danger approached, he seized the State funds and ran away. But perjury and robbery were part of the rebel system of finance. Terrorism was also part of their system of politics. Until the arrival of the Union troops delivered Nashville, the Harris Government maintained a reign of terror. To be suspected of Unionism was to be near death; and while Harris was dragooning the State into secession, the lives of such Union men as Baillie Peyton were constantly in danger. It is not surprising that Johnson, who, with all his faults, was honest and incorruptible, loathed Harris as "the head devil" of the wicked plot. And this is the man who has been chosen by the Democracy of Tennessee to the United States Senate. He is not only an unrepentant and irreconcilable rebel, but a plunderer, who should be outlawed from honest politics. He was put on the Tilden Electoral ticket last summer, but the commotion caused by reopening his infamous record compelled him to resign. He is good enough to represent Tennessee Democrats in the Senate—a type of the Reform Democracy. And a Memphis Democratic paper, the Appeal, says eulogistically of him that he ought to be thus honored because his life was consecrated to Tennessee in a great emergency.

For nearly two months past we have constantly asserted that the President of the Senate is Constitutionally vested with the sole authority to count and declare the Electoral votes. The Bangor Commercial has as persistently avoided trying its teeth upon that file tempered by State Rights workmen, but it started up yesterday with the impressive remark:

THE WHIG has at last mustered pluck enough to claim that the President of the Senate has the Constitutional right to count and declare the Electoral vote.

Secretary Chandler is reported to have said as he left the Capitol the other day, that he did not care much what Proctor Knott's committee took him for, provided they did not take him for a fool; and that if they imagined that he had sent any dispatches that he would be afraid to have produced, they would find themselves greatly mistaken. He said that he did not know what forged despatches might have been sent with his name signed to them, as he had heard of several such dispatches sent, as he believed, by Democrats in order to lay the foundation of charges against him, but that during the whole of the canvass he had looked upon despatches exactly in the light of postal cards.

COUNTING THE VOTES.

Ex-Speaker Banks, whose parliamentary experience has always been recognized by both parties, stated a day or two since, in reply to a question as to counting the Electoral votes, that "the power and right of the President of the Senate to count the votes is just as clear as the right of the Speaker to decide questions of order. The only trouble is that the exigency of time during late years had not rendered it necessary for the President of the Senate to assert or exercise this power, and the failure to do so had brought the country to its present complication."

Ex-Speaker Galusha A. Grow, in a letter to the N. Y. Tribune, says: "In the absence of any legislation or concurrent action of the two houses, how is the mandate of the Constitution to count the votes to be executed unless it is done by the person whom the Constitution has selected to receive and open them?—especially when no one else is specifically directed to do it; and it is neither perversion of language nor forced construction for him to do it. The requirement that the certificates shall be opened in the presence of the Senate and House no more confers the power to count the vote on either house than does a law that requires an election board to conduct a precinct election in the presence of supervisors appointed by the courts to be present confer power on said supervisors to count the votes and declare the result. Yet the board must perform that duty in the presence of the supervisors, who, however, have nothing to do with ascertaining and declaring the vote."

The Tribune editorially says: "As for the power to determine which are the properly authenticated certificates, there is not a word in the Constitution to authorize its exercise by any other person than by the President of the Senate, whose duty it is to open all the certificates, and to open as proper certificates nothing else."

The N. Y. Times declares: "It is only necessary for the President of the Senate to do the duty imposed on him by the Constitution, according to the best information he can secure; we shall then have a straight and sure and legal way out of the half-ingenious difficulties which Mr. Tilden's ingenuity and that of his lawyers have provided for us."

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The latest "conspiracy to count in Hayes" seems to have been formed by Col. Pelton and Proctor Knott.—Tribune.

The family bureau of the next Presidential campaign must be on a new model. Its only safety will consist in its containing a bank of its own, with a deaf, dumb and blind man for cashier.

The man who would make criminal suggestions by telegraph would be a fool of the first magnitude. Anybody who imagines that Chairman Chandler is troubled in that way is just in that predicament himself. Respectfully referred to Mr. Proctor Knott.—Tribune.

The nearer that $8,000 check is traced to Gov. Tilden's pocket the less interest do the Democratic editors take in the subject. They are so indifferent to it that they forget to print the news even; but they are more than ever convinced that Chandler is an awful rascal, that Morton is a monster of trickery, and that Hayes is the deluded victim of the most horrible conspiracy against the people's will ever concocted in a free Republic. It is an impressive spectacle.

There is a tendency on the part of the Southern press to speak unkindly of Mr. Watterson's army of 100,000 petitioners. They not only poke fun at the spectacle of so large a number of men going to Washington with a petition apiece, but they intimate that the author of the movement has blood in his eye. Thus the Memphis Avalanche says: "Mr. Watterson is a political lunatic. If his rash counsels could prevail nothing short of a miracle would prevent the deluging of this land with blood." He has been endeavoring ever since the Presidential election to rouse the fighting spirit of the South, but with no other result than to call public attention to the utter inability of such men as he to guide public opinion when the country is less calm than a duck pond.

OPINION OF A JUDGE.—A Washington special says: "One of the Judges of the Supreme Court, in conversation to-day on the reported proposition to place four members of that body on a board of arbitration to give opinions on questions arising in connection with the counting of the Electoral vote, said, that it was a settled principle of law, both in the Courts of the United States and of Europe, that Judges are not to decide suppositious cases; but to confine their opinions to real cases arising between man and man. In questions which would be submitted to such a board as had been suggested there would be no real parties involved, but the questions would be simply abstract. Judges of the Supreme Court could not act in a judicial capacity under such circumstances, for if they considered such subjects ministerially that fact might operate to their prejudice when a case at law involving similar questions came before them. It has been said by gentlemen of much legal ability to-day that the Judges of the Supreme Court if called upon to serve in a capacity such as indicated, would be justified in declining."

Imagine the Louisiana Democrats rallying for "brother-in-law Casey," as their candidate for U. S. Senator! How they have loved—and cursed—that man!

The Tribune calls the proposed plan of selecting a commission by lot "self-government by the dice-box."

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY-FOURTH CONGRESS, Second Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.

Mr. Patterson presented a lengthy petition of D. H. Chamberlain, R. H. Greaves, T. T. Cardozo, R. B. Elliot, Jno. R. Talcott and others of South Carolina, and said he would not ask to have it read, but moved it be printed in the record.

Mr. Alcorn objected to anything being printed in the record without being read in the Senate. Ordered printed in record.

Mr. Sherman from the financial committee, reported back the House bill authorizing the coining of the standard silver dollar and restoring its legal tender character without recommendation. It was placed on the calendar.

The bill amending the Pacific Railroad acts were postponed till next Tuesday.

A resolution offered by Mr. Anthony was passed, calling on the President for information relative to the revolt in Turkey.

A resolution recognizing Chamberlain as the lawful Governor of South Carolina by the Federal Government was referred to the Committee on Elections.

The message of the President relative to the troops in Petersburg was taken up and Mr. Johnston made a long speech.

The resolution submitted by Mr. Withers was agreed to. The consideration of the report of the Committee on Rules was resumed, revising the rules for the government of the Senate, which were agreed to, in the Committee of the Whole and reported to the Senate. Pending a discussion the Senate adjourned.

House.

The bill authorizing the appointment of a commission to attend the International convention to inquire into the relative value of gold and silver, was laid on the table—125 to 104.

The House adopted a resolution to permit the Committee on Privileges and Duties of the House to send for papers and persons and to sit during the sessions of the House by a vote of 149 yeas to 70 nays.

Mr. Lynde of Wis., from the Judiciary Committee made a report from that committee relative to the refusal of Messrs. Wells, Anderson, Cassanove and Kenner the members of the Louisiana Returning Board, to produce before the Committee on the Election in Louisiana certain papers demanded by said committee. The report concludes with a resolution directing the Sergeant-at-Arms to take into custody and bring before the bar of the House the above named gentlemen.

Mr. Frye of Me., a member of the Judiciary Committee, said that when that report was agreed to in the committee, there was no Republican member present. For his part he regarded the doctrine enunciated in it as a monstrous one. Under it there was no sovereignty anywhere in the country that was not subject to be called before a committee of the House and compelled to produce its original records. He held on the contrary that Congress had no more to do with the Returning Board of the State of Louisiana than he has an individual, had. He held that the Returning Board having been legally constituted by the authority of the Constitution of the United States, and proceeded with its duties under the law of Louisiana, having made its returns and these returns having been authorized by law, the House was precluded from getting behind them. The only authority that the House had was the general condition of the country, the public weal to inquire whether or not there was such a state of things there as that Congress ought to take notice of. On that question he should at once admit that there was such a condition of things there as required congressional intervention.

After a long discussion, the previous question was seconded, and the resolution went over until to-morrow.

The Speaker laid before the House a communication from E. W. Barnes, the recusant witness, who stated that the answer he made in his last appearance before the bar of the House, was made in good faith and he was entirely willing to furnish the messages demanded if in his power and that he would make every effort to obtain said messages and asking that he be permitted to make the attempt, and if unable to do so to again place himself in custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms. The communication was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Hunton of Va., from the Judiciary Committee, reported a resolution permitting William Orton, now in custody of the Sergeant-at-arms, to proceed under his charge to New York for the purpose of consulting his physician, and providing that he should return to Washington on Friday. Adopted.

The House at 5.15 adjourned.

LOUISIANA.

A New York World Special.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16. A Washington despatch to the World says those who have seen the President say he protests he has not recognized the Packard Government in Louisiana and does not intend to, notwithstanding the nature of his telegrams to Gen. Augur.

Nicholls and His Men Still Defiant.

The World's New Orleans despatch says as far as can be ascertained there is not the slightest weakening of the resolution of either the people or legal authorities. If Packard makes an attempt to carry out his threats his force will be united, but it is scarcely conceivable that he can organize a body of men for this purpose. Packard thought the Legislature, police and militia would disperse on the publication of his proclamation, but of this there is not the slightest prospect.

The Congressional Delegation Counsel Nicholls to Resist the Legal Government.

The Louisiana delegation to Congress sent the following to Nicholls, yesterday: "Pay no attention to Packard's proclamation; hold your present position. If Packard's militia attempts to interfere with you or your officials disperse them, but under no circumstances must there be any conflict with the U. S. troops."

No Change in the Situation.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 16—10.30 A. M. There is no change in the political situation since last evening. The Democrats have recovered from the depression caused by the President's telegram to Gen. Augur and are again hopeful, while the Republicans maintain that the telegram foreshadows an early and complete recognition of the new Government.

No Reply from Gen. Augur.

12 M. Gov. Packard has not received any reply to his requisition upon Gen. Augur for the restoration of the Court House. The city is remarkably quiet and there is no change in the situation.

Writ of Habeas Corpus not Recognized.

Sheriff Handy refuses to recognize the writ of habeas corpus, issued by Judge Shaw, for the assistant Sergeant-at-Arms of the Republican Senate, who are in prison here.

The White Leaguers Throwing a Sop to the Colored Men.

In the Democratic House a joint resolution was unanimously adopted that a policy of kindness, fair and equitable treatment towards the colored people of the State as announced by Gov. Nicholls in his Baton Rouge speech, and in a letter to Mr. Pinchback on the 12th inst., is endorsed and will be strictly adhered to by the Legislature.

WASHINGTON.

The Count of the Electoral Votes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. The Senate and House Committees on the count of the Electoral votes, held a joint session this afternoon. They did not arrive at a conclusion, but made such progress toward one, that they adjourned until to-morrow in the belief that another conference will result in a satisfactory agreement. The members say, however, that it is by no means certain that this expectation will be realized; but if to-morrow's session should fail to bring harmony in some plan for settling the question at issue, they will hold no further conference.

It is the present understanding that in either event the committees will report to their respective Houses to-morrow. It is intimated that the compromise agreed upon will prove a surprise to the public, as it embraces features not yet conjectured by persons outside of the committees.

THE OREGON FRAUD.

Pelton's Evidence about that $8,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. The Senate Committee on Elections continued the investigation in the Oregon Electoral case to-day.

W. T. Pelton, Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, testified that he suggested to Mr. Jordan, Cashier of the Third National Bank of New York, that he call on Harrison. Witness did not procure Mr. Jordan to transfer any money from New York to Oregon. He did tell Mr. Jordan that it was desired that certain gentlemen in Oregon should have credit for $8,000. Did not know exactly why he fixed upon this particular sum. It seemed that litigation would arise from the ineligibility of Watts in Oregon and it was proper that the gentlemen in Oregon should be sustained in their action before the courts.

Mr. Bellinger, Chairman of the Oregon Democratic Committee, suggested the necessity of having money to defray those legal expenses. Witness met W. L. Scott, a member of the Democratic National Committee, on the evening of Dec. 5th, when witness spoke to Scott about the $8,000. Nothing was said about security; never knew of money being sent to Oregon previous to Dec. 5th last, and witness knows of no effort having been made to send money to Oregon since the 6th of December last. Mr. Patrick went to Oregon in November, or in December last; Patrick had large mining interests in Salt Lake and went west to look after them. Patrick talked with Dr. Miller, a member of the Democratic National Committee in reference to going to Oregon.

THE INDIANS.

General Miles' Expedition Against Sitting Bull.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16. General Miles, Colonel of the Fifth Infantry, has just returned after a most successful campaign against Sitting Bull and other hostile chiefs who moved to the north of the Yellow Stone river in October last. His command numbered 430 men, marched over 600 miles in 45 days, defeating Sitting Bull in three distinct engagements and driving him back utterly routed and demoralized to the Yellow Stone river, which he will probably cross and endeavor to form a junction with Crazy Horse, who is in the Big Horn country with an immense number of hostile Cheyennes and Ogallallas. General Miles was compelled to return for supplies, but will within a week start again on the trail of the fugitive chief, and if possible prevent his junction with Crazy Horse, after which he will proceed without returning to the cantonment and attack the latter. Sitting Bull's force, numbering over 2000 lodges and more than 1000 well armed warriors, was completely routed and scattered. There is now but little doubt of his capture or surrender at an early date, if transportation, which is necessary for pursuit, will hold out for a few weeks longer. The last fight with Sitting Bull occurred on the 14th inst. at the head waters of Water Creek. On that day Lieut. Frank D. Baldwin with three companies of the 5th Infantry attacked his camp and completely routed him, capturing most of his lodges, a number of ponies and destroying all the robes, meat and other provisions. The suffering of General Miles' command during the campaign were very great. Yesterday the mercury stood 36 degrees below zero.

The same despatch says five Sioux chiefs were pounced upon by Crow scouts, killed and scalped before they were seen and recognized by the garrison of the cantonment. They had a white flag and probably intended to surrender.

A Washington special says the War Department has advices that the Indian war is closed by Sitting Bull, departing for the British Possessions where he always contains allies and ammunition.

A despatch to the Leader from Ashtabula says the coroner's jury assembled there yesterday afternoon and recalled Joseph Tomlinson, who had examined the wrecked bridge since the accident and found evidence on the angle blocks that some of the braces had slipped out of place before they were last painted, some of them as much as three inches. He said the braces should have been also fastened to the angle blocks, that this could not have happened.

GRECIAN ARCHITECTURE.—The second of the series of lectures by Rev. A. M. Knapp was attended at Andrews' Academy last evening by a select and appreciative audience, but if the entertaining and instructive character of these lectures were generally understood, we are quite sure that the seating capacity of the rooms would be taxed to their full capacity. The lecture last evening was upon Grecian Architecture, and the subject was treated from the beginning, or from beyond the beginning, the lecturer graphically tracing the transmitted and commingling influences of tradition and race which found development in the architecture of Greece. After an introductory address, in which the lecturer laid the ground-work for the evening's study by briefly sketching the civilizations and transitions of art which culminated in the Grecian era of grandeur and beauty, he commenced with diagrams of the earliest, and crudest forms of Grecian architecture, the rugged, rectangular stone temples, and led his auditors along by successive stages to the creation of those magnificent structures which have been the admiration of the world. That the study of this subject has been to Mr. Knapp a most congenial one is amply evidenced by the fluency of his treatment of the finest details and the instructive character of his generalizations. The stereopticon views, employed in illustration were thrown upon the wall by Mr. Hardy who handled the instrument, and were selected with special adaptation to the entertainment and instruction of the audience. The peculiarities and distinguishing features of the Doric, Ionic and Corinthian orders, were elaborately explained and the views included many of the most splendid monumental ruins of ancient Greece. No small portion of the interest of the lecture was contained in the exposition of the influences of civilization upon art and of art upon civilization, and the closing sentences, describing the melancholy decadence of Greece and its causes, were especially fine. We commend the entertainments as full of interest and instruction, and they afford an opportunity of obtaining information upon a delightful subject which should be specially availed of by the young. The next lecture will be given January 23, on the subject of "Roman Architecture," and tickets can be procured of Jacob Stern & Co.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SEA WEED TONIC, AND MANDRAKE PILLS.—These deservedly celebrated and popular medicines have effected a revolution in the healing art, and proved the fallacy of several maxims which have for many years obstructed the progress of medical science. The false supposition that "Consumption is incurable" deterred physicians from attempting to find remedies for that disease, and patients afflicted with it reconciled themselves to death without making an effort to escape from a doom which they supposed to be unavoidable. It is now proved, however, that Consumption can be cured, and that it has been cured in a very great number of cases (some of them apparently desperate ones) by Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup alone; and in other cases by the same medicine in connection with Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills, one or both, according to the requirements of the case.

Dr. Schenck himself, who enjoyed uninterrupted good health for more than forty years, was supposed, at one time, to be at the very gate of death, his physicians having pronounced his case hopeless and abandoned him to his fate. He was cured by the aforesaid medicines, and, since his recovery, many thousands similarly affected have used Dr. Schenck's preparations with the same remarkable success.

Full directions accompany each, making it not absolutely necessary to personally see Dr. Schenck unless patients wish the[illegible]

RICHARDSON'S PARALLEL GANG EDGER,

Patented Jan. 16th, 1872. Patented April 14th, 1874.

This Patent movable Box on end of Arbor gives it advantages over those heretofore experienced in removing Saws with Arbor, and loss of time; cut the Gibs and remove the Cross Bar with Box, and slip the Saw off. Machine is constructed entirely of Iron and Steel.

The Cone Pulleys are another great improvement, as they regulate the feed to suit the kind of work required to be done.

These Edgers are used extensively for Sawing Deals and Scantling. We would caution purchasers against buying those machines which are an infringement on these.

All sizes of Edgers, with two or more Saws, made to order.

Also on hand and for sale at low prices and liberal terms:

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pills gave me a hearty one."

"Your Pills are marvelous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the house."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your Pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little thing got well in a day."

"My nausea of a morning is now cured."

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ears, and the noise has left."

"Send me two boxes, I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar; your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your Pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your Pills by return mail, for Chills and Fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compels me to conclude.

For Cutaneous Disorders.

And all eruptions of the skin, this Ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cure the following diseases:

Disorder of the Kidneys.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel, or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these Pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the Ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order.

No medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these Pills; they remove all acidity occasioned either by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasm—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.
